Welcome
We Welcome You Wherever You Are On Your Journey

Gym Masses

Presider: Fr. Jim Cassidy

Our pre-mass speaker is Lisa Amman. Lisa just returned from a delegation to Rome with Discerning Deacons, a movement to restore women to the role of deacon in our church. For more info, go discerningdeacons.org. Thank you, Lisa, for sharing your story and your hope with us!

Carin Vagle will offer a meditation song and Lee and Grant Vague, a special offertory piece.

Family Mass

Join us at 9 & 11am in the church for our family-centered Masses. Today as we think about Jesus' call to serve others, we have a story, read by Greg King, based on an indigenous tradition of giving oneself away for the good of the people. We ask that all who attend wear masks to keep everyone safe. Come celebrate together at our joyful Masses!

Pastor's 2 Cents From: Fr. Jim DeBruycker

We often talk about the saving graces of suffering or self-sacrifice. Our theology is pretty much based on the self-giving of Jesus. He tells us today he came to serve, not to be served, and challenges his disciples to do the same. I always think of the power of sacrifice, especially of those who, instead of finding despair in misery, find peace. It's the peace Jesus is always offering his followers, the state of soul which says I am on the right path and doing the best I can for the good of the world no matter what threatens me. Where does a Gandhi, Martin Luther King, Nelson Mandela, Harriet Tubman et al., find the courage and perseverance to cause good trouble when there is seemingly no hope? How can someone walk out of jail after years and find it an opportunity for hope rather than be filled with revenge? Our country is in desperate need of this sense of self sacrifice.

Of course, the disciples are looking for power, wealth, prestige or, as people like to say these days, being an influencer. Wanting to be rich could be bad, but now, why be rich when you could be an influencer? You can get attention just by doing something outrageous and usually not very helpful. Are we that needy? Sorry, I'm being too negative again. Luckily, there are young influencers, who actually earn their influence, like Malala Yousafzai, the worker for women and children's rights, or Greta Thunberg, the eco warrior. There is our hope.

The last couple of weeks we started performing weddings again here at St. Joan of Arc (a number of them had been postponed because of Covid). I'm getting sentimental in my old age as I was actually starting to miss them. As I watched all the preparations and family interactions, I couldn't help but notice what an almost miraculous event a wedding is. How did they meet? How did it go from a casual relationship to a major commitment and covenant? Do they really know what they are getting into? No wonder people faint at weddings - it seems like a rational response. Whether they know it or not, they may be our salvation. You can't succeed in a relationship unless you are willing to sacrifice, and yes...to suffer. You certainly cannot have a family without sacrifice. Clergy like to wail and whine about their sacrifices, but compared to raising a family, there is no comparison. Of course, it has been suggested that I might be doing it wrong. Jesus has never asked us to suffer, or sacrifice for the sake of suffering, but to nurture a world where people care. Of course, the world got screwed up so we needed a major sacrifice (and a few more after that) to get us back on track. But the major glue that holds us together are still those small but significant covenants of everyday life.
